Shortly after 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon a horse driven by a traveling man became frightened at the sight and the rumbling of the cement mixer on the paving job on North Main street and started to make things rather lively in the district. The driver was powerless to check the flight of the horse. Running but a few rods the team struck a telephone post and the occupant of the team was hurled several feet out of his vehicle onto one of the lawns of a North Main street residence. The driver was uninjured. The shafts of the buggy were badly shattered so that the travelling person was obliged to secure a new hitch to make his trip. Late in the evening, disregarding all danger signs distributed along the street, some careless driver crashed through the rope guarding the newly cemented strip of pavement near the old Northern hotel. No damage was incurred to the pavement which has been set for several days, but the horse received slight bruises and cuts as the result of the contact with the stout ropes. When the steed struck the ropes it was traveling at a very fast clip.
